ITEM DETAILS

The A Tempo Percussion El Cajoncito (which translates to "The Little Cajon") is 3/4 the size of a standard cajon, making it an excellent choice for young players, small players, or percussionists who need a cajon that takes up a little less room.

Handmade in Peru, this cajon features a body made out of solid Monterey Pine panels put together with dovetailed joints. The playing surface and resonant side are made out of multi-ply Spanish Cedar and Lupuna.

ITEM DETAILS

The A Tempo Percussion Dos Voces Cajon pulls its name (Two Voices) from its two playing surfaces - one side is a traditional Peruvian cajon with no internal mechanisms, while the other side includes snare wires to become a Flamenco cajon!

The sound port is on the side rather than the rear, allowing you to simply flip the cajon around if you want a different style. It's essentially two instruments in one.

This beautiful instrument features a dovetailed mohena body, while both frontplates are constructed from multi-ply Spanish Cedar and Lupuna.

A free gig bag is included so you can protect and haul around your cajon with ease.

ITEM DETAILS

The A Tempo Percussion El Artesano Cajon is handmade in Peru from select pieces of Mohena, American Muskwood, and Tropical Walnut. The frontplate and rear face are made of multi-ply Spanish Cedar and Lupuna - as you can tell, this is a gorgeous and finely made instrument.

Internal snare wires give your high slaps a sizzly bite and they're positioned to stay quiet when you play on the bass area of the frontplate, giving you a very clear distinction between the two sounds.

The panels for the body of the cajon are hand-selected and put together with dovetail joinery, finished with a furniture-grade gloss finish. A free gig bag is included to help you protect this fine instrument on your travels.
